

Robert Sege, M.D., Ph.D., FAAP
Senior Scientific Advisor

Robert Sege, MD, PhD has been working with the Hood Foundation since 2014. He is a Professor of Medicine and Pediatrics at Tufts University School of Medicine, where he directs the Center for Community-Engaged Medicine at the Institute for Clinical Research and Health Policy studies. Bob is nationally known for developing health systems approaches to improving the health of children and their families. He is a Senior Fellow at the Center for the Study of Social Policy in Washington and serves on the boards of the Massachusetts Children’s Trust and Prevent Child Abuse America. He also has served on national committees for the American Academy of Pediatrics and the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Bob is a graduate of Yale College, received his PhD from MIT and his MD from Harvard Medical School. He lives in the Boston area, where he and his wife, Karen, have raised three young adult children.