

Jack Parker

Jack Parker joined the Board of Trustees of the Charles H. Hood Foundation in 2024. He graduated from Dartmouth College with a B.A. in physics and a minor in computer science, and while there performed astrophysics research culminating in a thesis on black holes at the center of dwarf galaxies. He now lives in New York City and works as a strategic consultant for Altman Solon, where he advises clients in the tech, media, and telecom industries.